LOCAL NEWS.

If you see it in the Townsman, it's news to be relied upon; if it is news and so, you'll see it in the Townsman.

David Shaw has purchased the W. H. Gile estate.

Thomas A. Remington visited friends in town Sunday.

Prof. Ryder preached in the Congregational church in Methuen last Sunday.

A good many Andover people have been to Boxford to see the Salem Cadets who are encamped there.

The new line to Haverhill saves half the time or three quarters of an hour over the old route.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Lovejoy, of Cliftondale, spent Saturday and Sunday at Joseph Lovejoy's, West Parish.

The next meeting of the Andover Christian Endeavor Union will be held in the West church in September.

Many Andover people witnessed the reflection of the fire at the Merrimack mills in Lowell last Saturday night.

Administration was granted the estate of Margaret Nicholson, at a session of the probate court in Salem on Monday.

Rev. G. A. Andrews of the West church will occupy the pulpit of the Old North church in North Andover next Sunday.

E. K. Wills, of the firm of Wallace & Wills, merchant tailors of Montreal, is spending a few days in town and is the guest of his sister, Mrs. James Cullen, Elm Place.

During the absence of Rev. Mr. Kengott, pastor of the First Trinitarian church, Lowell, the church is in charge of the pastor's assistant, Mr. Arthur G. Cummings of this place.

The game which was scheduled to be played between the Unions and North Reading next Saturday, has been cancelled on account of the disbanding of the Reading team.

Owing to a trolley striking the main wire near H. F Chase's store, several telephone lines were out of order Wednesday. Linemen were working all the afternoon and by Thursday the lines were in operation again.

Miss Florence I. Abbott and Miss Angie Burtt have gone to Silver Bay, Lake George, where they will attend the national convention of the Congregational Missionary association.

The trip of the Woman's Relief corps to the Soldiers' home in Chelsea and the headquarters of the corps at Boston, arranged for Tuesday was postponed to Thursday on account of the storm.

Dr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Safford of the University of Pennsylvania have been guests at the residence of the latter's father, Henry K. Flint, Porter Road. They will spend the month of August on the coast of Maine.

The Galen Medical Society had its annual outing on Wednesday last, at Wingate's Farm. In the afternoon a baseball game was played in an adjoining field. At the banquet several speeches were made, one of the most interesting being by Mr. Sargent.

The annual picnic of the Free church Sunday school will be held Saturday, August 1, at Canobie Lake. The fare will be 50 cents for adults and 30 cents for children under 9 years of age. The trains for the grove will leave at 8.30 and returning at 5 and 7.

The bridge at Stevens mills is now ready for travel. Superintendent Lovejoy has had the bridge raised two feet, two inches, and as a result of this the bridge will be free from water at all times. He says that the bridge will not need replanking for fifteen years.

An amusing incident occurred in the square the other day. One of B. F. Holt's ice carts was being towed along by another cart, when the second cart suddenly slipped its moorings. The driver went for some distance before he discovered his loss; when he did find it out, however, he recoupled his lead and proceeded on his way, and the incident closed.

About quarter past five Friday afternoon, the trolley wire just above the railroad bridge snapped and one end dropped to the ground Luckily, there was nobody standing near and no damage was done. A supply wagon was immediately sent over from Lawrence and the men worked all the evening repairing the damage. The Haverhill line had its share of trouble, for Saturday an accident to one of the cars delayed traffic half an hour; and the power gave out on another car three times before it could start for its destination.

The Boston Herald on Sunday last inaugurated a series of prize puzzles for the children, which bids fair to become another Herald success. Some 20 prizes are offered each week, and they are so awarded that children all over New England have the same opportunity in the distribution as those who live in Boston. Like everything The Herald does, the puzzle is an interesting character and calculated to please the children without giving offence. The drawing of the pictures is good, and the details of the arrangements most admirable. The children's department of The Herald is of the highest standard; indeed, it is on the same high level of excellence which has made The Herald and given it the right to be called New England's greatest newspaper.

A. O. U. W. and D. of H. Picnic

Under the auspices of the Past Master Workmen's Association, there promises to be a rousing good time for all Workmen and D. of H. members at Salem Willows tomorrow. Special electrics will leave the square at 9 a. m. for Salem and a large gathering of Andover members is expected to go. All the popular sports have been arranged for, to be climaxed at 3 p. m. by a ball game between two crack A. O. U. W. nines. The local committee is made up of E. E. Trefry, James Napier, J. H. Playdon and James Callahan, of whom tickets may be obtained.

Notice.

The Stamp Saving Society at the Andover Guild, will be closed during August, reopening Wednesday, Sept. 2. In case of need, cards will be cashed on presentation to the treasurer of the Guild, Mr. A. L. Ripley.

Ballardvale will play the strong Medford team on the Plains, Saturday at 3 o'clock. The local team is playing good ball and as they will have their star battery Drisko and Bonner, they feel very confident of winning.

The Goodwin & Kintz Company of Winsted, Conn., have purchased the plant of the Winsted Shoe Company of that place and will occupy it as soon as several necessary changes and repairs can be made. The new purchase is a large four story wooden building and will furnish them two or three times their present floor space. The change was made necessary by the large increase of business of the Goodwin & Kintz Company.

While the supporters of the local team were somewhat disappointed that they did not win last Saturday at Reading they saw the best game of ball that has been played in this vicinity this season. While each team made the same number of hits with the exception of Bonner's fine two bagger which brought in their only run, the Vales were unable to bat when hits meant runs.

BOSTON & MAINE'S BEAUTIFUL OLD HOME WEEK FOLDER WILL BE SENT FREE TO ANY ADDRESS.

The Old Home Week movement has taken firm root in New England, and the interest accompanying it and the efforts put forward call for much praise. Almost every town and city has its Old Home Week committee who are endeavoring to make a grand reunion if possible this year.

The Boston & Maine railroad has taken active part in the successful establishment of this movement and the Old Home Week folder which describes each one of the New England states in a delightful manner is a very interesting little booklet for the person who intends coming back Old Home Week. The illustrations are beautiful reproductions of typical New England scenes.

This book is free and will be sent to any address by the General Passenger Department, Boston & Maine railroad, Boston.

BASEBALL

READING Y. M. C. A 3; B. V. 1.

Ballardvale lost their second game of the season to Reading Y. M. C. A. at Reading, Saturday, by a score of 3 to 1.

Both teams played fine ball and were very evenly matched. For Ballardvale, Doyle pitched a good game. Lynch played fast ball. The outfielding of O'Donnell and Dearborn was especially good. Three fast doubles were the features of the game. The two teams will play in Ballardvale, August 29, when in all probability Saturday's score will be reversed.

A STORY OF ANGORA GOATS.

Interestingly Told by a Townsman Correspondent.

"Let's take a day in the country! Birds, bees and bloom—hear them call!
Life is not bound by the cities, and the gold that we glean is not all!
Let's take the road to the woodland, far from the fever and rush—
Lulled by the ripple of brooklets, and the silvery song of the thrush."

A visit to the farm of John Brooks Jenkins in the southern part of the town, some bright morning when earth, air and sky are attuned to nature's happiest mood, teeming with the rich verdure of early summer, bright blossoms, and bird song, would promote the two-fold purpose of radiating strength and health, and happiness, to the would-be seeker of a few hours' restful pleasure, and afford also an opportunity to convince the most skeptical, that the solution of the great problem 'the preservation of the New England forests from extinction'—a subject which has agitated the public mind for the last quarter of a century—is so far solved that an effective check, if not an effectual remedy, has been discovered by a simple and intelligent innovation along the lines of long-established rules of husbandry, transmitted from father to son for many successive generations.

The introduction of the Angora goat, a specie of domestic animals whose value as forest restorers has been too long overlooked in this section of the country, is now conceded by agriculturists, prominent for energy and thrift,—possessing likewise the science and capital to successfully carry out a scheme which they confidently expect will be the salvation, or in other words, the direct means of restoring abandoned farms, and exhausted pastures to something of their former fertility, and stimulate the growth of wood and lumber productiveness. As far as we can learn John B. Jenkins enjoys the distinction of being the first Andover farmer, whose progressive ideas, strengthened by a careful study of the situation, and a thorough digestion of the practical theories advanced in favor of the new industry has resulted, in making a test of the pleasure and profit to be derived from the occupation, by purchasing a flock of ten Angora goats from reliable parties in Maine, the stock having previously been shipped from the goat raising state of Missouri. On their arrival in Andover they were duly installed under his personal supervision on the ancestral acres of the home farm.

Many years ago Mr. Jenkins won an enviable reputation as the proprietor of excellent pasturage for horses and young cattle during the summer season. Acres of forest wood had been felled, and a luxuriant growth of grass sprang spontaneously from the virgin soil, so classed because it has never felt the pressure of the plough-share, or the glow and warmth of a "burn over" upon its grassy sod. Nature has also provided an inexhaustible supply of clear running water, which is of incalculable value to stock raisers. It was these characteristic features which attracted our attention to the farm a score of years ago, at a time when good pasturage, then as now, was at a premium.

Presuming on the revival of old acquaintance, one morning last week the writer took a few miles drive over a pleasant suburban road, which led by preconcerted intention, to the shady lawn of a large, white farmhouse of colonial style of architecture. The oaken frame stands squarely upon its granite foundation, surmounted by a massive chimney which was raised, brick by brick, to its present eminence more than a century ago—a retrospective reminder of the upright character of its builder, Captain Benjamin Jenkins, and birthplace of his three sons, Stuart, John B., and E. Kendall Jenkins all of whom attained manhood and were honored citizens of their native town.

Passing through the main entrance of a domain of one hundred and fifty acres of pasturage, which enclosed the flock of goats we were anxious to inspect, with our host as guide, we resumed the journey by cart path, eye and ear alert to note the first appearance of the animals whose acquaintance we were desirous, yet we must own a little timid, about cultivating. At the same time, however, we were not indifferent to the rural attractions of the quiet surroundings. Great boulders of unbroken rock dominate the numerous hillsides, springs of crystal water burst forth from shady declivities. Trees and bushes in great variety met the eye on every side, as we advanced over the upland slope in the direction of Alsbee Hill. This hill comprises several acres which in former years constituted a part of the mowing average of the old homestead. Since the present owner has resigned the active duties of practical farming it has been assigned to grazing.

Just one word now for the picturesque scenery, and health inspiring air of Alsbee Hill; well might it become a Mecca to all lovers of beautiful sunrise and sunsets. From its grassy summit you may obtain an uninterrupted view of the terminal line where earth and sky, at all points of the compass, seem to meet in a sea of grandeur.

On its crest a large apple tree extends its wide spreading branches in grateful shade, and beneath this cool retreat a flock of goats were lying in close proximity to each other, quietly ruminating after the fashion of a herd of neat foot animals. To the visitor whose observatain of goat life is circumscribed within the narrow limit of a few solitary specimens of the native goat, reproduction of a mongrel pedigree, which ranks lowest of all forms of domestic animals, the first glimpse of a family of pure bred Angoras is something wonderful—the contrast between the two breeds is as significantly apparant, as would be the features of a North American Indian of 1620, in the same foreground with the class of Americans who occupy this continent at the present day, with the culture and education of three centuries of ancestry behind them.

To illustrate the point in view, we will quote from the quaint, but true to nature phraseology of the inimitable Mark Twain who asserts:—"Training is everything, the peach was once a bitter almond; cauliflower is nothing but cabbage with a college education." The same theory holds true in regard to these beautiful animals, their placid nature, and mild expressive eyes; their quiet self-possession, and kindly associations with one another; their intelligent perception, and intuitive appreciation of the human family as they quickly respond to the kind voice, and gentle touch of their enthusiastic owner, is certainly the result of training, the outcome of a long line of well-bred pedigree.

The crowning point of pre-possessing make-up, is their beautiful silky hair, white, soft and glossy, and very abundant. In spring time when in full fleece, falling in graceful ringlets to the tops of their small aristocratic feet.

The Angora goat derives its name from the capital of the Turkish vilayet of the same name in Asia Minor, about 200 miles from Constantinople. "Angora is famous for its breed of goats with beautiful silky hair." A fine grade of yarn is made of this hair called Turkish, or camel yarn, and is used in the texture of camel hair shawls, and the mohair cloth, with which railroad coaches are upholstered. Another grade is utilized in hair mattresses, an indispensible accessory to a well appointed sleeping apartment.

The Angoras are self-supporting, subsisting in summer on the leaves of objectionable undergrowth, and shrubs of barberry, blueberry, blackberry, hazelnut, sumac, sheep-laurel, savin, coarse brakes, and last, but by no means least, the white birch, which has sprung up everywhere in the last half century, choking and persistently crowding out the ambitious sprouts of heavier and more profitable woods; so that heavy timber varieties if not protected from these insidious inroads, and the irreparable drain in their localities, must of necessity become exterminated, in the common course of nature's laws.

Fifty years ago white birch was so rare it could hardly be classed as one of the standard New England trees, which included, oak, elm, maple, pine.

Now it has become the bane of owners of lumber and wooded estates where acres and acres of stump cut-downs are decaying, and nothing but birch saplings have sprung up and are growing profusely, to the detriment, if not the annihiliation of the timber varieties which have not returned as was the old-time custom of earlier years. It is claimed with evident proof of the statement, that the goat will reclaim these abandoned and worn out pastures, and turn them back to woodland. The advantage of goats over sheep is their habit of refusing to feed on grass in the pastures, but will grow sleek and fat, browsing on bushes in summer, and tender shoots in winter. The bushes and shrubs they defoliate soon languish and die. Of Mr. Jenkins' original family of ten goats, when he started two years ago, he has fifty descendants, making a total of sixty all told. With reasonable expectations he hopes to reach the one hundred mark the present year. In the rear of his farm house, a house is provided, to shelter his flock by night. Summer and winter it is the unvarying rule and not the exception, they return at nightfall.

Early in the morning they vacate, and start out to forage. Ignoring the footpath, they prefer the more exhilirating exercise of walking on top of the stone walls. Guided by instint, this ingenous movement supplements another definite purpose they have in view, namely: to supply an available means to secure the great variety of delicate tid-bits, growing beside the stone fence, which they eat with evident pleasure as they poise themselves on their hind feet, and with deft manipulation reach forward and secure the coveted foliage of tree or shrub which they regard as a morning luxury and tonic.

Their sense of taste and smell is very acute. Their decided preference for leafy vegetation is phenomenal. They will pass through a field of clover and timothy grass, or tall pasture grass, to reach the rocky, bushy hillside which constitutes the goat's paradise. They are agile in ascending and descending the trunk of a tree if slightly on the incline.

As before stated the Angora goat is of Asiatic origin, but is coming into high favor in the United States. Already California, Missouri and Kansas are taking the lead in goat raising, but not until recently have the New England States discussed the subject with a view of introducing the industry within our boundaries, and great results are anticipated. Every product of the new enterprise when Americanized can be utilized for commercial gain.

The goat makes the finest of meat, the carcass resembles a young lamb when dressed, and the flesh is superior to mutton in daintiness and flavor. It will only require an educated taste, easily acquired, to enjoy an Angora roast, steak or tenderloin.

The hides are used for various purposes. The horns and hoofs materialize as ornaments of unique design, the head, entrails and voidings, by the use of science form a fertilizer of great commercial value.

New Hampshire people are in correspondence with the Department of Agriculture in Washington asking for information about goats and their habits, especially the Angora as there is a decided preference for that strain in their state. Connecticut is also interested, and parties have been sent to the Granite State to make a prospectus of the abandoned and exhausted farms with a view of utilizing that mountainous region for goat producing industry which it is predicted will yield remunerative returns to the investors. In Kansas the prize bearing animals command a fancy price. Mr. Jenkins states that his goats never stray from fold or pasture, that he has met with no loss of life in his flock, by sheep-killing dogs, which is usually the case in the latter flock of animals, and has never known one of the 'guards' as the bucks are designated, having any encounter with dogs, although they have sometime come in close contact with each other. He is quite sure the guards would not take the aggressive side of the battle, but would assuredly act on the defensive if attacked in their house of shelter.

Nearly all the lime juice used in the world comes from the tiny island of Montserrat, in the British West Indies. The lime grows wild in many West Indian islands, but only in Montserrat is it used commercially. That island is one vast garden of lime trees, and nowhere in the world is there a finer sight than its 30 miles of orchards, laden with the fruit of the lime or fragrant with its blossoms.

The fruit is gathered by negro women, who carry it down the hills to the shipping port in big baskets on their heads. Like all West Indians, they are remarkable for their ability to carry heavy weights in this manner. Once the company which controls the lime-juice industry sought to lighten the burden of its laborers by introducing wheelbarrows.

HAVERHILL'S BIG TIME.

Old Home Celebration July 26-31 Will Surpass All the Others.

The Old Home Week Celebration in Haverhill from July 26 to 31 inclusive, promises to be the biggest and most pretentious event of the kind to be observed in Massachusetts this year. There will not be an idle moment during the entire five days over which the fun has been spread, although the civic parade on Wednesday and the firemen's muster on Thursday will without doubt bring the good time to a climax. In the former nearly every society in the city will take part, and as prizes have been offered for the organization making the best appearance and the body turning out the largest number of members a great rivalry has been engendered among the various societies and each is seeking to make the most of everything it possesses. Besides the organizations, the business houses have taken hold of the matter in an earnest way and it is given out in an unofficial manner that there are a number of unique as well as gorgeous creations in the way of floats already designed. Everybody is working hard to make the affair one of the most monumental successes the city has ever seen, and the statement of Mayor Flanders that it will be better even than the 250th anniversary celebration bids fair to be realized. The firemen's muster has been placed in the hands of a competent committee who are acting in conjunction with the Veteran Firemen's Association and the list of prizes is such that a large number of entries is assured. Six prizes have been offered, making four for the playout, one for the best appearance in the parade and another for the company coming from the farthest distance away. Already some of the best machines in the state have been entered and it is purposed to secure at least 35 entries if possible. During every day there will be band concerts, balloon ascensions and sports of all kinds, both on land and on the river. These will include base ball games between teams in the New England league, running races, bicycle matches, and athletic contests of numerous kinds. Following is the program for the entire week:

SUNDAY, July 26.
10.30 a m. Services in each of the churches, with appropriate themes.
5.00 p. m. Mass services in several of the churches.
MONDAY, July 27.
6.30-7 a. m.—Ringing of city bells.
9.00-10 a. m. Band concert on common.
4.00 p. m. Balloon ascension from Webster street grounds.
TUESDAY, July 28.
10.00-11 a. m. Public reception at city hall by the mayor and city government. Music.
3.30 p. m. Balloon ascension and sports near Lafayette square.
8.00 p. m. Banquet and literary exercises at city hall. Music by orchestra and quartet.
WEDNESDAY, July 29.
9-10 a. m. Band concert.
2.00 p m. Civic parade.
5.00 p. m. Exhibition drill of Haverhill fire department.
8.00 p m. Band concert.
THURSDAY, July 31.
10.00 a m., 4 p. m. Children's day at Winnikenni Park, with music and various amusements.
3.30 p. m. Balloon ascension at Winnikenni Park.
Also in the afternoon and evening river sports and flotilla.

A LAWRENCE LADY RECEIVED POPE'S BLESSING.

Of the many residents of this city who sincerely mourn and regret the demise of His Holiness, Pope Leo XIII, it is very probable that with the exception of the Rev. Fr. James T. O'Reilly, Mrs. Charles W. Walworth who resides at 549 Haverhill street is the only person who has ever had the pleasure of being in his presence and of receiving his Holy Blessing.

At a time some 15 years ago Mrs. Walworth passed some few years in Italy visiting the many places of interest. It was through the agency of a Canon of the Holy Catholic church, with whom she had acquaintance, and who had been a personal friend of His Holiness before he was elected to the Papacy that she was allowed with a party of friends to attend on one Tuesday of Holy Week service in the private chapel of the Vatican. Pope Leo said Holy Mass and at the close all received his Holy Blessing. There were but a few present, though many had been in the city of Rome for months seeking the opportunity of being admitted to the presence of the venerable head of the Holy Catholic church. She remembers distinctly the trip across the city very early in the morning as it was, and of the grand ceremony and etiquette attendant upon the occasion.

The gentlemen wore evening dress while the ladies were attired in black without a single article of color and with a black mantilla thrown over the head, and without gloves. The party party passed into the Vatican and through the Sistine Chapel speaking always in reverential whispers. At either side were stationed the members of the Swiss Guards in their stern posture and in full uniform and armor. At that time Mrs. Walworth thought the Pope a feeble but venerable old man. It was necessary then that he be supported on either side by his attendants and it did not seem that he could live for long. Mrs. Walworth recalls the memory of her audience with the Pope as one of the most cherished experiences that has ever been hers in her extensive travels.

His addition to the Arlington directorate brings to Lawrence banking interests a man of worth and ability.

THE COURT DECISION SOON.

W. S. Knox, counsel for the license-commissioners, stated this morning that the case will probably be reached the first of August, when a hearing will be held before a superior court justice to be decided upon soon.

The court will review the evidence in regard to the Mayor's charges against the commissioners and decide whether or not the mayor should be sustained in deciding to remove the commissioners on the evidence submitted.

"Brown used to live in Texas you know, and he says he soon found out that Rhode Island wasn't big enough for him."

"What was the particular trouble?"

"Why, he was busy arranging to put up a big office building and the authorities stopped him just as soon as he commenced excavating the cellar."

"What did they say?"

"They said he'd have to stop. He was undermining Massachusetts on one side and Connecticut on the other."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

AN UNIQUE INSTITUTION.

A few miles outside of Lawrence, on the Lowell road is situated an institution which has no counter-part in the United States. Its purpose and scope is directed towards the education of the Syrian youth in this country, who will some day become American citizens. The germ of the school sprang from a small private school situated at 295 Oak street, which the present master, Joseph Saliba, opened in October 1901. Principal Saliba, who is one of the most prominent Syrians in Lawrence, is a man thoroughly imbued with American ideas and principels, and well equipped to divert his compatriots in a thorough intellectual training. To him belongs, in a great measure, the advancement made in recent years by the Syrians of Lawrence, and his one aim in life seems to be the training of Syrian boys that they may become bright, intelligent men, and active interested Americans.

On October 6, 1901, Principal Saliba opened a school at 295 Oak street, and all Lawrence pupils attending were day students. During the winter months, an evening school was opened in connection with the school, and soon it was found that accommodations were insufficient for the numerous applicants. More commodious quarters were necessary consequently the school was moved to the Lowell road, near Ayers' Lane in Methuen, where it now flourishes as a boarding school. This change took place in November 1902, and it was soon found that an ideal spot had been secured. The situation is rugged and healthful and ample opportunities for outdoor life and amusements abound. The school now consists of thrty-five students, but is prepared to accommodate at least one hundred. Steam heat, with all other modern improvements are found in the equipment and airy, commodious apartment house attending pupils. The attendance is not confined to residents of Lawrence alone, for on the list of students are found boys from Cairo, Ill., New York city, Portand Maine, Worcester, Providence R. I., and other distant cities.

The aim is to reach boys from all parts of the United States and as soon as conditions necessitates, the facility will be enlarged to meet all demands. Principal Saliba, together with his assistant Mansor Rajey, are not only giving up their lives for the enlightenment of the Syrian children, but have gone a step further by conducting a noble philanthropic enterprise in connection with the educational work. That is to say, this school not only admits, but welcomes Syrian orphan boys who have no one to care for them, and the expense of their care is borne largely by the master of the school. The curriculum conforms to the needs and abilities of the students, and a rigid but kindly discipline is enforced. The hour for rising is 7 a. m., and the morning session extends from 8.30 a. m. to 11.00 a. m. The afternoon session opens at one o'clock and closes at four o'clock. From seven to eight o'clock in the evening is a period of study. Saturday is a holiday.

Mr. Saliba finds time to give to other affairs of life and is now at the head of a movement to provide a new hospital for Lawrence, plans for which are now drawn and which call for a large and handsome structure to be erected near the site of the school and commanding a delightful view of the Merrimac river. This hospital has been a long felt want and will do an immense amount of good especially for the needy and poor who will be admitted and treated free. The good work has been started by the gift of a large tract of land for a site and $500 in cash by Mr. Saliba. To further the project a Syrian Ladies' society has just been formed with the object of collecting funds for this charity, and it is further proposed that the receipt for contributions shall be a bond on the hospital by virtue of which the holder shall be entitled to hospital service equivalent to the amount of the contribution. The hospital will not be confined to Syrians but will be open to every one in need of assistance and care.

The prime mover in all these charitable works, Mr. Saliba, came to America thirteen years ago, and is today the dominant spirit of the 3500 Syrians of this city. The Syrian paper Alikbal (Prosperity) is another of this unique and benevolent man's enterprises.

Rufus McQuade spent last week at Salem Willows.

James Robinson has returned from a trip to Nova Scotia.

Arthur L. Scollay is at the Fairmont, York beach, Me.

Miss Marion Marble has returned from a visit at Hingham.

The small boy was deep in thought, says the New York Press, and finally he went to his mother for help in solving his big problem.

"Mamma," he said, "did God make all the world?"

"Yes, dear."

"Did he make the ground and the water, the trees and the flowers"

"Yes, little boy."

"Did he make all the animals and the people?"

"Yes, dearest. He made everything."

"Well, mamma what business is God in now?"

TRUE PREVENTIVE OF HAY FEVER

Hyomei Destroys Germs of the Disease and Keeps People Well.

There can be little or no doubt as to hay fever being a germ disease. It is, too, one disease where prevention is much easier than cure.

All who are subject to this disagreeable trouble should use Hyomei daily for at least two or three weeks before the time of their annual attack In this way the annoying paroxysms of sneezing, running at the nose and watery and smarting eyes can be avoided.

This remarkable discovery makes it possible for anyone to breathe air at home which is almost identical with that of the Adirondacks or White Mountains or other resorts where hay fever sufferers go to escape their trouble.

If, however, Hyomei has not been used until the disease has begun, it is necessary to use it more frequently, at least half a dozen times daily, and Hyomei Balm should be rubbed into the nostrils both morning and night. This treatment will relieve at once and will effect a cure in nearly every case.

E. M. & W. A. Allen have a complete line of the Hyomei goods and will sell an outfit of inhaler, Hyomei and medicine dropper for $1.00, and will also agree to refund the money if the treatment does not give satisfaction.

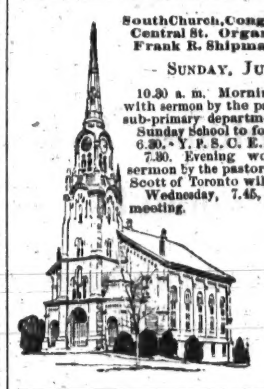

Do not try to cure hay fever by dosing the stomach. Breathe Hyomei and in that way the medication will reach the minutest air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, soothe and heal the irritated mucous membrane, and prevent and cure all hay fever troubles.

God, Give Us Men!

God, give us men! A time like this demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands;
Men whom the lust of office does not kill;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who possess opinions and a will;
Men who have honor; men who will not lie;
Men who can stand before a demagogue
And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking;
Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog
In public duty and in private thinking.
For while the rabble with their thumb-worn creeds,
Their large profession and their little deeds,
Mingle in selfish strife, lo! Freedom weeps,
Wrong rules the land, and waiting Justice sleeps.

Dr. J. G. Holland, in Public Policy.

The No. Andover Railway — One Lesson.

We have discussed at several different times during the past few months the progress of the controversy between the town of North Andover and the street railway company. The adjustment of the difficulty, by which both sides agree to the findings of an arbiter, would seem to close this long drawn out conflict, but we cannot help emphasizing one phase of the affair before it is allowed to go out of the minds of the public. And the point we wish to have considered is that when it comes to giving in for the sake of harmony, human nature the world over is much the same.

Men, especially American men, like to fight, and they like even more to win. We see the operatives of a mill enter their protest against what they consider unjust treatment, and many outcries at once go up against their unwisdom. Let their protest take the form of a strike, and every conservative calls the action foolish and unwise, as often it is. But it is not any more foolish nor any more unwise than thousands of acts committed in the daily business struggle between men and corporations, only as it is so often the protest of the weak against the strong, in which there is but one inevitable result. The struggle in every case is the struggle between two bodies, both of which think they are right and both of which are willing to fight for their beliefs. Whether the fact that the nation started as a "protest" has any influence in creating this spirit or not, the fact remains that the American's toes cannot be trod upon without a protest. There is in every one of us the inborn spirit of "fight," and there is in most of us the inborn determination to "win".

The result of this is not alone seen in the conflicts between labor and capital, but all too frequently we see it between the large interests where the people at large can not help suffering which ever side remains obdurate. The case at North Andover is one in point. The town could afford to fight if its officials chose to, and the street railway company "pays its lawyers by the year". The town officials fought for the side they believed in, because they felt it to be their duty; the railway company undoubtedly fought its case on their general principle of fighting everybody who may want to fight.

They have spent many long months in this useless struggle and come at last to just the place urged in these columns at the beginning. Much bitterness has been engendered and bad feeling created which many years will not entirely efface. Insinuation against men's characters and suggestions of questionable work have left a divided town on the one hand, and a discredited public servant in the shape of the Haverhill and Andover railway company on the other; and all this because of what? Not because of ignorance, as is often charged against the poor laborer, for the most eminent legal ability was found on both sides; not because of blind leadership, for both sides have been under clear visioned men; not for any other reason in the world but to "lick the other fellow".

And now they come to arbitration; to the leaving of all differences to one fair man. Through him they will get together and do business, and if there is no other lesson to be learned out of this long and senseless dispute, there should certainly be learned this one, that the greatest need of the present day is a larger appreciation of the value of "give and take" in every affair of life. The path of arbitration will be uneven and hard to tread, but its way may be immeasurably smoothed if such quarrels as that now closed in North Andover can be hereafter quickly adjusted through its kind offices.

Editorial Cinders.

There are two particularly interesting communications in the Townsman this week. One is upon a subject of much importance to the many Sunday School workers in Andover, and some very timely suggestions are being brought out by Mr. Shipman in his review of an important book. The other is a story about a branch of agriculture which few people in Andover know much about. But no one could read the story written by "H. G. P." without receiving knowledge of the subject treated, or without great enjoyment of the writer's entertaining way of imparting that knowledge.

The whole question of transfers on the Andover street railway lines seems to need careful attention on the part of such authorities as can provide some relief for the present unsatisfactory condition. Efforts are being made to bring about some improvement in this important matter.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Quarterly Meeting Held with the Free Church Society Last Friday Night.

The quarterly meeting of the Andover Christian Endeavor Union was held with the Free Church society last Friday evening.

The president, Mr. Holt, had charge of the exercises. The meeting opened with a praise service which consisted of music, responsive reading and prayer by Rev. A. T. Belknap.

In response to the roll call each society repeated a short psalm.

The secretary's report of the last meeting which was held at North Andover, was read and accepted. It was voted to send letters of sympathy to Rev. Dr. Barnes and Rev. Edwin Smith. The society also voted to send a letter of approval to a railroad official who has recently reduced Sunday traffic on his road to a minimum.

The evening's address was an interesting and instructive stereopticon lecture on "Mission Work" and the conference at Lake George. The society voted to send as their delegate to this year's conference to be held at Lake George, July 22-31, Miss Angie Burtt, of the West church society. After this part of the entertainment, all adjourned to the vestry where the following welcomed them to a social hour: Miss Nellie Russell, Miss Grace Leslie, Miss Jean David, Miss Ethel Clark, Fred Goff and George Carter. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge, consisting of David Coutts, chairman; Misses Grace Leslie, Jean David, Jennie Gordon, Nellie Russell, Bertha Coutts, and Elmer Philbrick, David May, George Carter, Wm. J. Wylie and Dana Clark.

The percentages were as follows: West, 27; South, 37; North Andover, 13; Ballardvale, 23; Baptist, 36; and the banner was therefore awarded to the Baptist society.

WEST PARISH.

J. H. Knight spent last week with relatives in Worcester and Shrewsbury.

Mrs. L. M. Downing and C. E. Downing who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Hardy, returned home today.

Miss Florence Brown or Haverhill is visiting Mrs. J. A. Morrill.

Deacon Abbott of the Washington Mills office is taking his two weeks' vacation.

Miss Clara Withington of Buckfield, Me., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hardy.

There will be a regular meeting of the Grange, Tuesday evening. A lawn party will be held on the church lawn.

Miss Driver of Rockport, Mass., has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Tuck.

Thursday, Mrs. Tuck, Miss Hill and Miss Driver spent the day at Hampton and Salisbury beaches.

Mr. W. S. Pike is having a tennis court made on his grounds.

The Sunday school of the West church held their annual picnic yesterday at Haggetts Pond. During the morning the boats received the most attention. At noon dinner was served and in the afternoon a baseball game was played between the bachelors and the benedicts, the former winning by a score of 9 to 5. Then came the following field events: Peanut race, (children), won by Marjory Morrill; Doughnut race, Paul Ward; Hop, Step and Jump, Phillip Mooar, Susie Smith; Boat race, Phillip Mooar; Wheelbarrow race, Louise Kelsey; Foot race, Edward Hardy; Foot race, (little girls) Lois Stickler; (older girls), Louise Kelsey: Driving spikes, Mrs. J. A. Morrill.

Obituaries.

MRS. JACKSON DAWSON

Last Monday afternoon, the body of Mrs. Jackson Dawson was brought to Andover from Jamaica Plain, and interred in the Episcopal cemetery, the Episcopal service being used at the grave. Mrs. Dawson was well known to many in Andover, having lived here several years when her husband was gardener for the late John Dove. For the last thirty years, her home has been at Jamaica Plain where her husband is head gardener at the Arnold Arboretum. Besides her husband she leaves a large family of five boys and two girls. The floral display at the grave was very beautiful showing the tribute of love and sympathy of a large number of friends both in Jamaica Plain and Andover.

RACHAEL BRIERLY

Mrs. Rachael Brierly died last Wednesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Towle, in the Scotland district, at the age of 84 years. The deceased was born in Lancashire, England, April 30, 1819, and came to this country in 1846, making her home in North Andover for the greater part of her life; about three years ago she came to Andover. She has been an invalid for the last five years.

Mrs. Brierly was a member of the North Andover Methodist church, and a Charter member of the ruth Rebecca Lodge of Lawrence, a delegation of whom attended the funeral services which were held at the home of her daughter last Saturday afternoon, and performed the lodge funeral services at the grave. Although very little known in Andover she had many friends in life, but always lending a helping hand whenever it lay in her power. Interment was in Ridgewood cemetery.

Nearly all the lime juice used in the world comes from the tiny island of Montserrat, in the British West Indies. The lime grows wild in many West Indian nslands, but only in Montserrat is it used commercially. That island is one vast garden of lime trees, and nowhere in the world is there a finer sight than its 30 miles of orchards, laden with the fruit of the lime or fragrant with its blossoms.

The fruit is gathered by negro women, who carry it down the hills to the shipping port in big baskets on their heads. Like all West Indians, they are remarkable for their ability to carry heavy weights in this manner. Once the company which controls the lime-juice industry sought to lighten the burden of its laborers by introducing wheelbarrows.

Break in Water Main.

A bad break in the water main occurred this noon at Stimson's Bridge. Men quickly arrived at the break and the gates were shut off each side of the brook within 15 minutes after it was discovered and the flow of water was stopped. The tracks were flooded for about 50 yards and the cars were obliged to run very slowly.

The break was in the blow off pipe and instead of pumping out the water the near proximity of the river allowed the men to drain the water into that. As the water slowly drained out a large hole was exposed showing the immense pressure of the water. The portion of the road which was undermined caved in, as the water lowered. The water had forced itself through a foot of solid macadam.

The men are still at work repairing the damage.

All of our gingham remnants marked down to 12 1-2 cents. Special value at Farr's Remnant Store, 9 Lawrence treet, Lawrence.

Telegram Wins.

In a game, yesterday afternoon, on the Academy grounds, the Lawrence Telegram defeated the Andover Townsman in a baseball game by a score of 11 to 7, thus partially wiping out the crushing defeat of two years ago.

The game was full of humorous incidents and was thoroughly enjoyed by victors and vanquished. The game was started for five innings, but when the end of the fifth was reached the Townsman was one run ahead and as the Telegram nine were very "strenuous" in their desire for two more innings, the Townsman people kindly consented and the Telegram, with the help of a player who had arrived on the grounds post haste from New York, as kindly went to work. The presence of the New Yorker seemed to cast a spell over the Townsman players, for in the next inning they went to pieces and the Telegram got five more runs and won.

Next year the Townsman expects to get even for this, their first defeat at the hands of the Telegram.

Choir Boys Entertained.

Last Friday organist John Bachelder of the Christ church took a number of the Choir boys on a picnic to Canobie Lake. During the day cricket and other games were indulged in. In the afternoon a baseball game was played between the Reds and the Blues, the latter winning by a score of six to three. The party returned in the evening after a pleasant outing.

BASEBALL

Unions, 7; Blue Stockings, 3.

For the second time this season the local baseball aggregation proved too much for the Blue Stockings, the crack nine of North Andover. The first game was a close one and was won by the score of 3 to 2. The game Saturday was played on the campus and was witnessed by a large crowd, many of whom came with the Blue Stockings.

The game was a most interesting one from start to finish, although Andover held the upper hand all through.

Although making more errors than their opponents, the Unions played better ball and batted harder. Killacky had an off day, but was partially excusable on account of a lame arm, caused by being hit with a pitched ball and also by playing out of his usual position.

In the box, Hilton rather outclassed Starks, allowing only five hits to the latter's ten and having one more strike out. He was especially effective with men on basses and several times he got himself out of bad holes by his heady pitching. Three times the bases were full with one or more out, but he pulled himself together and did not allow the opponents to score. He kept the hits scattered.

On the other hand, Starks was hit harder than score indicates, good fielding by the visitors keeping down the runs. Lawson did great stick work, making three hits which brought in four runs, although he failed to score himself. Soutar played a great game at short after he made his only misplay, a wild throw over first.

For the Blue Stockings, Clements led at the bat, Geany, Hargreaves and Kelly excelled in the field.

The Andovers met defeat last Saturday afternoon at the Riding Park, the Beacons of Lawrence being their opponents. In the first part of the game the score was close but during the latter part the heavy batting of the Beacons began to tell on the local pitcher and 11 runs were piled up thereby clinching the game. The final score was 15 to 4. The fielding of Nolan for the local team was one of the features of the contest.

CRICKET

Methuen, 102; Andover, 58.

In a slow and rather uninteresting game last Saturday afternoon the Andover cricket club were defeated at the hands of the Methuens by a score of 102 to 58. The defeat of Andover can be attributed to the loose fielding, the misjudgment of flies and poor throwing. By careful batting the visitors piled up the runs although Captain Bruce had a good bowling average having five wickets for 18 runs. Hodgson batted well for Methuen having 27 while Matthews excelled for Andover with 11. For Andover's half to bat the wielders of the willow were too anxious to hit the easy, slow bowling, thereby being easy victims for catches and stumping. Callahan's catch of Briggs' hit was the main feature of the game.

Wedding.

PEET—FITZGERALD.

The congratulations of many friends throughout the town are extended to Sidney C. Peet and Catherine A. Fitzgerald, whose marriage took place on Wednesday, July 22.

Both are well and favorably known in Andover. The groom has been for five years the trainer and coach of the Phillips Academy athletes, and as such has met with marked success. The happy couple received many beautiful gifts. They have gone away for a wedding trip and on their return will reside on Bartlett street.

A small parishoner in Aberdeen brought a basket of strawberries to the minister very early Monday morning.

"Thank you, my littl girl," he said, "they are very beautiful. But I hope you didn't gather them yesterday, which was the Sabbath day?"

"No, sir, 'replied the child; "I picked them this morning. But they was growin' all yesterday."—Stray Stories.

HANDSOME GIFT TO PHILLIPS

Friend of the School Presents Generous Sum of $25,000—Chinese Students Coming.

Principal Alfred E. Stearns of Phillips Andover academy announced Thursday that a friend of the institution, whose name is withheld by request, had given $25,000 to the school to be used for any purpose considered most advisable by the academy authorities.

This is one of the largest gifts ever presented to the academy and comes at a time when it can be used to great advantage. It is probable that some of the money will be added to the fund being raised by the class of 1892 for the purpose of providing an infirmary where students who are ill can be treated. Some of it may also go towards constructing the building which it is proposed to erect in memory of the late Dr. C. F. P. Bancroft, who was principal of the academy for 27 years.

Principal Stearns also stated that he has just received a letter from Sir Chentung Liang Cheng, the new Chinese minister to this country, who graduated from the academy in 1882, and who attended the 125th anniversary of the founding of the institution last month in which the minister said that two of the twelve or more Chinese youths whom he brought to this country to be educated, will be able to enter the academy this fall, having become sufficiently proficient in English.

The New Sunday School.

Article II.

The article printed last week under this heading closed with a suggested curriculum of studies in the new Sunday-school. This curriculum began with three years of generally awakening instruction. Stories are told, sometimes from the Bible, sometimes not; pictures are shown; simple verses are given for memorizing. The quality demanded from the teacher for these years is a kindling imagination. It is his business to make the elemental moral traits (such as honesty, truth, obedience, gentleness, courage) glow with attractiveness; and to do this, he must know how to make stories and pictures and verses glow.

After these three years comes one year of general study of the books of the Bible, reading of appointed portions and memorizing of selected passages. Imagination is not so much needed in the teacher during this year as vigor and enthusiasm in what might too easily be routine work.

Three years of biographical study follow. In these years the teacher must be an educator rather than an instructor. That is to say, he must know how, by skilful question and apt story, to leave vivid impressions of the lives of Old Testament hero and New Testament apostle, rather than an ordered knowledge.

In the next three years, devoted to study of particular books of the Bible, more of an instructor's qualities are needed.

By this time the scholar is almost ready to enter the high school in his public school course. He is beginning to think for himself, to ask questions and to cherish ideals. Somewhere along the high school course the great transaction in spiritual life called conversion ought to take place. With girls it should occur somewhat earlier than with boys; and still girls differ among themselves, and some boys are more mature than others. It follows, however, that the teacher for these years should have a trait not demanded before, the power in some degree of religious conversation.

The graded curriculum suggested above respects the needs of children as distinct from adults. Hitherto the curriculum of religious instruction has been devised by adults who have forgotten how it seems to be a child. The uniform subject-matter for all ages of pupils is a mistake.

But it is not the only mistake we make. We are also wont to think that all teachers must teach in the same way, i. e., by the religious conversation method. In fact, Bishop Vincent, who represents very well the older ideas in their strength and in their weakness, not long ago defined the Sunday School as "a gathering of religious conversation classes." According to this theory, the successful teacher is the one who reaches most quickly the subject of personal religion; all others are unsuccessful. It would be wrong to deny that this first type of teacher is one of highest usefulness; but it is not the only legitimate type. Perhaps the erroneous idea that it is so is partly responsible for the too great preponderance of women in our teaching forces. There is more than of type of teacher that is legitimate. A teacher is not necessarily a failure who does no more than impart to his scholars a connected idea of a certain period in Biblical history. On the contrary, from the point of view of the complete Sunday-school curriculum, possibly that was the one aim he ought to have had, and any success of another kind (even a satisfying religious conversation) would have been — for him — failure. This is one illustration of the varied types of teaching that are legitimate. They are more than simply legitimate, however. The types of teaching should vary necessarily, if the children and their appropriate lessons vary.

Another suggestion follows quickly. It is this. If different kinds of lessons are called for at different ages, and if a teacher proves to be adapted to one kind of lessons and not to another, why not attach him to that kind of lesson? In other words, why not retain a certain teacher as a teacher of twelve-year-olds, if he has proved to be adapted to the lessons in biography which twelve-year-olds should study? Our system is different at present. Teacher and class move on together from eight to eighteen. Even now, however, our primary teachers and also the teachers of adult classes are stationary. Would there not be a gain in making them all stationary?

There would be an obvious loss. All the advantage gained in long, intimate acquaintance and knitted affection would be lost. On the other hand, this advantage is not so great or so widespread as we sometimes think it. More often than we suspect, scholars grow languidly wonted to their teachers and become impervious to their influence. Teachers fall into ruts in teaching. It may be a good rut for one year, but not for ten.

Balancing loss and gain, I am inclined to think that we shall not soon or wholly abandon the practice of associating teacher and class in a "till death us do part" bond; but we shall not adhere rigidly to it. A teacher who has discovered in himself an aptitude for teaching twelve-year-olds will decide that he wishes to stay with twelve-year-olds, though by doing so he must renounce the interest of seeing his pupils grow up. A teacher who can teach history and cannot talk on personal religion will not require himself nor be required by the superintendent to go on out of the history epoch into the religious conversation epoch. He will stay where he has succeeded. He will specialize on the years that seem to be his province. He will practice, practice, practice. In his chosen field he will learn the art of putting a question, of telling a story at the right moment, of meeting indifference, of getting at the point, of speaking simply, directly, definitely.

The leader of the teachers is, of course, the superintendent. The Religious Education Association, whose theories I have been unfolding for the most part, assumed that sooner or later superintendents will be paid officers, but I shall not go beyond mentioning the point in this article.

More About the Forty-Niners.

Mr. Editor: —It may be that some of the readers of the Townsman are California Pioneers, or at least descendants of such, and so have a just pride in observing the wonderful progress of that land of fruit and flowers, that bright and glittering star of the West. For there is not an intelligent man or woman of the land that has not a profound respect for a forty-niner or as a founder of that great and growing state and country. Of the several organizations of New England that gather from time to time yearly to celebrate their wonderful achievements and recount the perils by ocean, the dangers and privation endured in that wild and undiscovered country, none, perhaps, are more deserving of consideration than the "New England Associated California Pioneers of '49". It claims to be the only society this side of the Sierra Nevadas composed of strictly forty-niners — and be it remembered that the name this association bears marks an era in the life of this nation. Replete as it is in thrilling adventure for solid work and substantial results, it has no parallel in the annals of time.

This society was organized in Boston, June 17, 1889. Its membership list quickly mounted to 160-175, and its ranks have since been yearly depleted by a death rate of eight to ten a year. Now known to be living only about 60, whose average age is, I think, 79. Active members about 40, while less are able to attend regular meetings, which are held at the Revere House, Boston, quarterly, the first Thursday in the month. These meetings are purely social, calculated to revive the scenes of long ago and keep green their memories.

Besides these meetings we have two eminently social gatherings, viz., the banquet, ladies' day, Jan. 24 of each year, commemorative of the discovery of first gold in California. To this feast sons and daughters of Pioneers are (as associate members) most welcome. The second is the annual "outing" one day at the seashore and dinner, etc., to which all are invited as before. The last of these occurred on Wednesday, July 15th, at which time but 17 of the "Old Guard" genuine forty-niners, with ladies, assembled for dinner, which was called promptly at 1.30. All being seated, the president rapped to order and remarked as follows:

"Comrades and Friends: — Preliminary to our usual exercises, we desire to have a very brief memorial service. Gathered here, as we are so many today and in circumstances of so much mercy, it is fitting that we remember those of our brotherhood so often with us, but, alas, who have joined the grand army on the other shore. We miss them—our hearts are sad as we count the vacant chairs—and as we remember their hearty happy greetings, their wise councils, their cheerful though varied reminiscence of other days, it is fitting that we have them in remembrance today. There are, as you know, eight who have thus left us during the past year, viz., George A. Kimball, died April 16th, 1902; Lafayette Allen, died July 12th; Capt. John Cole, died July 24th; Samuel T. Manson, died Aug. 18th; Capt. Miles Blanchard, died Aug. 25th; Alfred Bicknell, died Feb. 1st, 1903; George H. Stickney, died Mar. 20th; George G. Spurr, June 6th.

"A brief set of resolutions have been prepared and here read as follows:

"It is within the wisdom, power, and province of our Heavenly Father to afflict the children of men, and whereas it has pleased a Wise Providence to remove from our midst, by death, within the past year, many most active, esteemed and honored of our Brotherhood. Therefore be it hereby

"Resolved— That in our sorrow for the loss of faithful and beloved friends we would condole with earnest and affectionate sympathy with the several household is thus deprived of their earthly head, and find consolation in the assurance that it is well with them for whom we mourn, and that be it further

"Resolved—That these resolutions be spread upon the records of the Society, and that a copy be sent to each of the families of our deceased associates as a token of respect for their Christian character and faithfulness.

"Done at the annual meeting of the Society at the Revere House, Boston, June 17, 1903.

H. M. HAYWARD, Pres.
EDWIN LITCHFIELD, Sec'y."

Following, a most excellent and appropriate prayer by the Rev. Dr. Plumb of Boston, a guest of the occasion.

After the dinner, the time, two hours, was well improved by recounting the "days of old", "when we dug for gold", "away back in '49".

The day was fine. The hotel ("The Ocean House" at Swampscott beach), up-to-date in all its appointments and most elegant. A sumptuous feast was well served, a most cheerful and lively post-prandial exercise closed the day, all of which goes to sustain the verdict, viz., "A perfect success" (in a small way) Mr. Editor.

I have here made known the object to some extent of our society. Would be pleased to confer with any of your readers, by letter or otherwise.

Respectfully,
H. M. HAYWARD.

Andover, July 23d, 1903.

Five or six men were recently chatting in a village inn, when on of them said:

"I say I bet ye dinners all round ye can't tell me the answer to a puzzle I knows of."

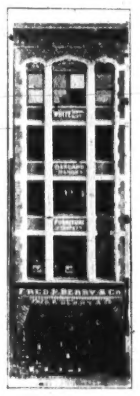

"Done," said they. "I bet we can. What is it?"

"Well," said Pat, "why is a journalist the funniest creature in the world?"

After vainly trying for about two hours, they sadly said they must give it up.

"Why," said the delighted Pat, "because his tale comes out of his head. Con't it."—Spare Moments.

A Woman's Realm.

Woman is now to be taught in college how to please her husband. The feminine members of the faculty of the Ruskin university, in Illinois, are the originators of this noble project.

A news note says: "Miss Ada C. Sweet, dean of the school, is the chief expositor of the doctrine. It is proposed to teach girl pupils how to read character and become familiar with the pschology of men, so that they may know to meet the moods of their spouses and prevent the domestic infelicities which result in so many separations." Incidentally, housewifery and the art of cooking are to be inculcated, the theory being that man, as a spiritual creature, may be appealed to effectively through his physical being.

Miss Sweet is a prominent member of the Chicago woman's club."

The woman's page of every newspaper that one picks up is full of information as to how the fair sex may please the masculines with which it comes in contact. Woman's magazines describe methods by which men may be attracted. Questions in large quantities come to inquiry columns asking what are the best plans to pursue to make oneself fascinating to the members of the indifferent sex.

Wives are gravely told that they must invariably appear in their best clothes, with a rose in their hair and a smile on their lips, if they are to keep the affections of their lords. The troubles of the household are on no account to be mentioned to these gentlemen, but their slippers must be kept warm and waiting, and an easy chair be placed near the light, where the head of the house may read his paper without interruption when he comes in.

When, one wonders, will there come a new regime when men will write to newspapers asking how they may keep the affections of their wives, and when magizines will devote pages to advice on the subject?

Let us hope the time is not far off when some one—it will never be a man—will write rules for men, among which may be these:

"Don't be the last to acknowledge your wife's merits. Women love flattery.

"Don't wear a chip on your shoulder. An ounce of forgiveness is worth a pound of pride. Give in. You can have your way when she is not looking.

"Don't be ashamed to proclaim your love for her. Tell her often and demand a response. It gives her something to think about.

"Don't travel wide apart, or the chains will cut. The only way not to feel them is to keep close together.

"Don't listen to outside criticism, whether of friends or of relatives-in-law.

"Don't attach too much importance to those little tiffs which may be the result of outside worries or indigestion. Make allowances for her being human. Give her the benefit of every doubt.

"Don't make the evening repast a confessional for household troubles. She has troubles of her own. You may be one of them."

The writer does not wish to be accused of plagiarism, and therefore he may as well confess that the sage paragraphs given above are merely some rules for women contributed by a woman to the current number of a weekly and turned inside out.

It will be seen that they apply equally to husbands as to wives.

Why does no one ever think to write some rules for men to live by, so that they may retain the respect of the women for whom they are supposed to care. Is it because the attitude of complacency which the masculines assume has at last convinced even their victims that they could not be better, and that they must be catered to if they are to condescend to continue to respect their womenfolk at all?

There was never a man who felt any fear that he could not keep the devotion of all the feminines who knew him. He may storm, he may act like a sulky child, he may be unreasonable, jealous, tyrannical, exacting, selfish, stubborn, conceited, but it never occurs to him that his wife will think the less of him for that. What she has to think about is how she may keep his love. That will give her plenty to do.

Just before her wedding the other day a young woman was visited by all her feminine relatives, who had come with the best intentions in the world to tell her how to live that she might remain a cherished wife to the end. The burden of their song was that was never to contradict George, and she was never to oppose him in anything he had set his heart on. She was to be always a humble and patient wife, and a well-dressed one, though the servants left and pandemonium reigned in the house-hold.

The young woman listened patiently for two hours, and then she broke forth. "You seem to have made the mistake of thinking I am going to marry the arch-angel Gabriel," said she. "Well I'm not. I'm going to marry plain George Smith. He is a nice fellow, and I am fond of him or I would not be marrying him but he is sure to make mistakes, and I am going to put him right when he does. I am not going to treat him as if he were a piece of very brittle Dresden china, nor yet as if he were a reasonable man, and if anyone is treated like an archangel it is going to be myself, and if he doesn't like it the sooner he gets a divorce the better pleased I will be."

Then she paused for breath, and her feminine relatives went out shaking their heads and decdaring that Ethel didn't understand the seriousness of the occasion and that hers would not be a happy home.

The rules compiled by women as to how to treat men, are exactly as "patient" Griselda-ish" as they were in Chaucer's days, arising to write some paragraphs for men, telling them how to mind their P's and Q's so that they may be tolerated by women. Men are very good things in their places, but they are unutterably spoiled by the adultation they receive.—Baltimore News.

WHO PAYS FOR THIS WEDDING FUN.

The Pullman company has made a demand on F. P. Woolston, a prominent Christian Endeavorer of Denver, for $200 damages to the sleeper in which he recently made his bridal trip.

It seems that the car was captured by Woolston's friends and decorated in a unique manner. Men's and women's shoes and old horseshoes and banners and things were nailed to the windows of the pullman sleeper, inside and out. Nails were driven into the car with as much abandon as if it had been a picket fence.

When the sleeper got back to Denver from Ogden it is said that it looked as if it had been the target for a gatling gun. It was taken out of service and put in the shops, and now the Pullman company is trying to make Woolston pay for the repairs.—Argonaut.

Teacher—Tommy Brown, tell me the shape of the earth.

Tommy Brown—Round.

Teacher—How do you know?

Tommy Brown—You told me.

Teacher—Well, how do you suppose I know?

Tommy Brown—Oh! I s'pose somebody told you.—Boston Herald.

The above is told as a joke, but it explains what learning—education is. Does anyone suppose that wise people would come to Boston thousandsofmiles to see each other and hear each other talk, and look at a few gravestones, etc. Wise men are not fools. We are pushing education (see above joke) so far that we are making fools of many of the rising generation. Each human being is constituted to receive a certain amount of knowledge from within. If we crowd the mind with trash from without, how can the knowledge from within assert itself?

Hr father—I've no objection to your calling on my daughter, but remember, I turn out the gas at 10 o'clock.

A CONTENTED MILL OPERATIVE.

A Speeder Tender.—Said a hearty appearing, middle aged woman who is working in one of the carding rooms in the city: I've worked in the mills 31 years this month, and people who work in those mills nowadays don't know what an easy time they have compared with what we used to have. I'm not any stronger than the rest of the girls who used to work with me, but I've worried myself for the rest of my days.

"I didn't get married like most of the rest (not because I didn't have plenty of chances) and you can believe that I had just as good times as the rest, going to excursions, dances, and theatres whenever the rest did. When the Young Men's society ran affairs I used to attend every night with the rest of the crowd and turn out for work in the morning.

"But it's a great deal easier to work in the mills for a woman than it used to be. The machines are a great deal easier to run, and there is not so much hard work for a speeder tender. Then thy supply us with better accommodations; a chair, a neat sink, and a place for our clothes, and the hours are a good deal shorter. Of course, I'm a few years older than I was 30 years ago, you know, but every year for the last 10 years I've had a good month's vacation, and I don't need to feel that I'll be dependent on my relatives later on. In fact, they have depended on me more than I have on them, but the young ones all like me. I'm only telling you this to show you that a good many things you write about the poor mill girl might well be written about the poor shop girl or the poor old married girl with five or six children and a lazy husband, or about a lot of others who need your sympathy. The mill girl whol ooks out for herself can be the most independent and happiest girl of them all if she wants to be."—Fall River Herald.

"You say that man's relations won't speak to him?" said the surveyor, who had stopped at the log cabin.

"Yes, and it serves him right. Jes' as soon as he come into a little property got hisself a glass eye an' a set o' false teeth, an' his kin reckon d it was mighty ill-mannered to come around puttin' on style an' wearin all that j welry."—Washington Star.

SKYLARKS IN OREGON.

The vexed question as to whether skylarks have abandoned the Ladd tract in Hawthorne av. or not has been definitely and satisfactorily settled by L. L. Hawkins, who made an investigation of the tract. He found one pair of skylarks with a pair of young ones, and also some horned larks, another bird imported from Europe when the skylarks and other song birds were brought over. There is no longer any need for dispute about this subject, and Oregonians can rejoice that their state is the only one in the union where skylarks flourish.

It has been discovered that the reason why the skylarks have deserted one of their haunts near the city limits is that the tract where they used to nest has been leased to Chinese, who have started a six-acre cucumber patch there. Under such circumstances the larks cannot be blamed for going further into the country as the cucumbers grow so plentifully that there is no room for the larks among them. As long as the vines are kept well stripped and none of the cucumbers are allowed to ripen, new ones are produced in great numbers, and a single hill of vines will produce four bushels of "gherkins." People cannot live without pickles, but they can get along without music, so the larks must go.—Portland Oregonian

"Williams," said Fweddy, feebly, to his man, "what is the mattah with my head this mawning?"

"We were very drunk last night, sir," said his man, with a respectful cough as he came forward with the hot water and bandages.—Chicago Tribun.

Medford Sunday golfers may play "solitaire," but they mustn't compare notes often enough to make it seem like a match or a contest in golfing skill, for if they should do so, and the police were to find it out, they would have to quit playing. They should be able to stand all such puritanical persecution.—Boston Herald.

A Kentuckian shot his brother-in-law in a church at Horman's Lick. The Puritan Fathers used to take their guns to "meeting," but there is no record of their shooting one another during the service. The savages th weapons were intended for were outside the sacred edifice.—Boston Herald.

Odd Things in New York City.

Here are a number of odd systems of curing disease which are now practiced in New York city:

The grape cure consists in reverting to a diet exclusively of grapes for several days at a time. It is much practiced in Europe. Patients go to the vine-yards of the south and spend 10 days there, eating the grapes all day long.

The fruit cure largely used in this country, is merely a modification of the grape cure.

Allied to the grape and fruit cures are the two-meals-a-day, one-meal-a day and the fasting cures.

A somewhat similar cure is the milk treatment, advocated and practiced quite extensively in New York city. Its disciples prescribe an exclusive diet of milk—as much in certain cases as two or three gallons a day.

The bath-tub cure, largely practiced in Germany, but also in occasional use here, is a modification of one of Kneipp's systems. The patient's body is immersed in water at blood heat, and he remains there for days at a time, even sleeping in the water. The cure is of special efficacy in the treatment of burns, scalds and other external wounds.

Of baths here is an almost infinite variety used therapeutically. The Turkish, Persian and Russian baths are familiar. The needle bath is another.

The recently developed light treatment is assuming important proportions. It has many forms and is especially used in cases where disease is known to have a bacterial origin.

An important class of cures includes hypnotism, suggestive therapeutics and magnetic healing. Related to these methods also is Christian Science.

The National health league is a million-dollar corporation formed for the promulgation of the nature cure. This includes many methods of treatment but is central idea is the study of healthy conditions and the attainment of them by normal methods.

Complete rest is the cure-all devised by a prominent Philadelphia physician. He devotes an occasional week spent in bed under conditions favorable to the least possible exhaustion of vitality.

The olive oil cure is widely practiced. Pure oil is used externally with rubbing and internally as nourishment.

Deep breathing is claimed by many to be a specific in all manner of disease. The theory is that perfect aeration of the lungs means healthy blood and consequent health of all the tissues.

Physical culture is a very important branch of therapeutics. Its advocates claim that with regular exercise intelligently directed, and, as an essential accessory, right eating and drinking, the body may be kept in normal condition.

The treatment of certain diseases by baking the body in a special oven has recently been practiced with success.

The lean-meat cure is another system of dietetics.—New York oWrld.

VEGETABLES AND DIGESTION

The value of food depends, not only upon the nutrition it contains, but also upon the amount of nutrients that can be digested and assimilated. Hence it is obvious that food should be cooked so as to preserve their digestible properties as will as their digestible properties as well as their flavor.

Vegtables lose more flavor through cooking than does any other class of foods. The common vegetables, that is the less expensive ones, lose more through careless, cooking than do other kinds. Turnips, carrots and cabbage can be made most appetizing by a little care and the proper flavoring. Onions and cabbage should be cooked in two waters to render more delicate the naturally strong taste, but the majority of vegetables should be cooked in just enough water to keep them moist, thus preserving the natural juices and flavors.

The strings of beans should be removed from both ends twice and the beans thoroughly washed and cut into 1-inch pieces. Cover with boiling salted water, let them come to the boil and drain off and cover with hot stock. Let them simmer till done.

Lima beans are cooked in the same way. Turnips should be cut into dice and cooked in boiling salted water till done.

Special value in White Dotted Muslin, 25 cent quality, 15 cents per yard, at Farr's Remnant Store, Lawrence.

"What are eggs today?" asked the professor, putting his market basket on the flour barrel.

"Eggs was 25 cents a dozen today," replied the grocer wiping his lips with his white apron.

"Don't say eggs was 25 cents; say eggs are 25 cents."

"I won't say eggs is 25 cents, nuther."

"I didn't ask you to say eggs is 25 cents; I asked you to say eggs are 25 cents."

"I won't say that nuther."

"Well, I'm sure you want to speak correctly, don't you?"

"Yes, but I wouldn't be speaking correctly if I said that."

"Oh, yes you would."

"Oh, no, I wouldn't."

"But you would!"

"Well I say I wouldn't; for I ain't got no eggs. I sold out this morning!"—Yonkers Statesman.

THE WIDOW.

While in Peekskill I went to call on two old friends, a widow and a maiden lady.

Said the widow:

"Well, I married when I was quite young. My husband died and I had him cremated. In about two years I married again; he died and I had him cremated. I married a third time and lived to cremate him."

"Ah," answered the maiden lady, "wonderful are the ways of Providence. Here I have lived all these years and never have been able to get married to one man, and you've had husbands to burn.

An Irishman wandering up Fifth avenue saw in the window of a photographer's shop a large photograph of Mephisto, says the New York Press. He went inside, and after gazing about the walls, on which were hung visions of Fifth avenue loveliness, said to the proprietor:

"I want to have a pichtur taken av meself an' me bruther. How much?"

The proprietor named the figure.

"All right," said Pat. "Will you take it now?"

"Where is your brother?" asked the photographer.

"He's in Ireland," was the reply.

"Well, my man," said the photographer, "we can't take his picture unless he is here."

"That's funny," said Pat. "Ye took a pichetur av the devil, an' he's down below."

The survivors of the 11th Massachusetts regiment held a reunion at Salem Willows, Tuesday, the occasion being the 42d anniversary of the first battle at Bull run.

MAINE'S FIRST ARTILLERY.

Maj. Charles J. House clerk in the office of the labor commision and Capt. Horace H. Shaw of Portland have about completed the history of the 1st Maine heavy artillery, which was mustered into service in Bangor, Aug. 21, 1862.

The history of the 1st Maine heavy artillery is of special interest from the fact that it lost more men than any other of the 4000 regiments in the civil war, a total of 441, as against the second heaviest loser, the 8th New York heavy artillery, with a record of 361.

The loss of this Maine regiment at Petersburg was the heaviest of any regiment in a single action, the number killed and subsequent deaths from wounds being 242, against 207 in the 8th New York at Cold Harbor. The Maine loss of 155 at Spottsylvania was the third heaviest of any regiment in a single action. There were 2200 men originally enlisted in this Maine regiment, 219 hailing from Bangor.

The loss to the regiment during the 36 days from May 19 to June 18, 1864, inclusive, was 404 killed, 789 wounded and 15 taken prsoners, making a total loss in this short period of 1208.

During the three days' battle of Petersburg the 2d army corps composed of 84 regiments and four batteries, lost 59 commissioned officers 14 of whom or almost 24 percent, were officers of the 1st Maine heavy artillery. In the two battles of Spottsyvania and Petersburg there were a total of 746 members of the regiment wounded. At the four engagements of Cold Harbor, Boydton road, siege of Petersburg and Deatonville there was a total of 113 wounded.

The greatest number taken prisoners at any one time was at Jerusalem Plant road, June 22, 1864, when 22 went off with the enemy. There are 537 survivors scattered over various sections of Maine and Massachusetts, a few having drifted to the west and south. The only field officers now living above the rank of captain are Maj. C. V. Crossman of Bangor and Brevet Brig. Gen. Charles Hamlin, reporter of decisions.—Portland, Me., Argus.

TOO MUCH GOLD.

An inquisitive-looking little man, whose condition indicated that even his eyesight was below normal, stood on the sidewalk near police headquarters one day this week and was attracted by the glittering gilt on the uniform of a member of the police department.

"There's so much gold about Washington now," he remarked to a pedestrian, "that a stranger can't tell whether a man's a street-car conductor, a steamboat captain, an army officer or an ordinary policeman. Even drivers and porters in business houses are wearing gold. Is Washington full of gold bugs?"

"I guess it's something of that kind," the stranger ventured. "There is lots of gold to be seen on uniforms about the city."

"I'm going to register a kick," the partly intoxicated man said. "You see, I'm a democrat and a free silver man, and I object to these men wearing so much gold on their clothes when there's no occasion for it."

"But it brightens the uniform, and gives people to understand that the wearers of the bright colors are more than ordinary people," suggested the pedestrian who was addressed by the man who had been imbibing.

The latter promptly announced that the last remark did not suit him.

"Fine clothes may make fine birds," he said, "but a little gold on a man's clothes don't make him any better than I am. Who's that man walking down there now?"

"He's Capt—"

"Captain of what?"

"Of police."

"I've got no more to say except that I thought he was on a steamboat."

They parted the best of friends.—Washington Star.

VERY REMARKABLE CURE OF DIARRHOEA.

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller, of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque County, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial of a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by E. M. & W. A. Kentucky Justice.—The attorney for the prosecution—Did you hear the prisoner declare he would kill the deceased.

The Witness—Your honor, must I answer questions that would imperil my personal safety?

The judge—You must answer the present question.

The witness—Your honor, I throw myself on the court. I am a married man and have a family depending on me. If I answer the question in the affirmative, I'm as good as dead.

The judge—What would you have the court do.

The witness—I ask the court's protection. I want every man in the court room disarmed.

The judge—Bailiff, disarm the persons in the auditorium. Here take my gun first.

The witness—I want a gatling gun stationed in the court yard and a company of mountain sharpshooters about the court house door.

The judge—Bailiff, attend the details mentioned by the witness, and at once.

The witness—Thank you, judge. And now just one other thing. Let me breathe my answer into your honorable ear.

The judge—Very well, witness. Step up and let's have it.

The witness steps up and whispers to the judge. The latter nods. The witness whispers again. This time the judge shakes his head.

The witness—Thank you, your honor.

The judge—Resume your seat. The court is satisfied. Let the trial proceed.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BLAME ALL UPON THE BERRIES

A small parishoner in Aberdeen brought a basket of strawberries to the minister very early Monday morning.

"Thank you, my littl girl," he said, "they are very beautiful. But I hope you didn't gather them yesterday, which was the Sabbath day?"

"No, sir, 'replied the child; "I picked them this morning. But they was growin' all yesterday."—Stray Stories.

REPORT OF PRIVATE ARROWHEAD:

"In the suburbs I have seen men running for the trains and cars every morning. They have swallowed their breakfast rapidly, and then dashed for the cars. The result is fermentive dyspepsia. They are troubled with palpitation gases on the stomach, and raise sour liquid in the mouth; after meals they have pains in the chest, a lumpy feeling in the throat.

"Where dyspepsia and indigestion were once prevalent, now there is great happiness," and in almost every home will be found Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets. E. M. & W. A. Allen report that they never sold a remedy for Indigestion and Dyspepsia that was so universally successful."

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are Warranted to Cure All Forms of Indigestion amd Dysepsia

Money will be rhfunded, exactly as printed on package, in case of dissatisfaction. Price 25c., at our store or by mail.

METHUEN.

Frank Remick has been elected one of the directors of the Arlington National bank of Lawrence.

Mrs. Caleb Sargent, Miss Fannie Reed and Miss A. N. Reed of this town are at Salisbury beach.

Ellen Holdsworth, wife of Benjamin Holdsworth died at her home, 11 French street, Sunday, aged 57 years and three days. Deceased was a native of England. She resided in this city for the past 13 years. The funeral will take place Wednesday. Interment will be in Bellevue cemetery.

But he survived and at the expiration of his term of service Mr. Randall decided to, remain in Washington where he worked at his trade, barbering, until 1868, when he removed to Louisville, Ky., where he continued to follow his trade.

When Mr. Randall went away from home he left a stepmother, two half-brothers and a half-sister. One of the brothers entered the army and has since been lost to relatives, who very naturally think he gave his life on the battlefield or died in a Southern prison pen. The sister died several years ago.

Mr. Randall wrote repeatedly but was unable to find any of his relatives. The annual convention of teachers that assembled in Boston this month afforded the opportunity to Mr. Randall to visit New England by the special rates offered. He at once commenced the search for his relatives. He visited the towns where they had resided before he separated himself from the home. For a time he was unsuccessful and had almost decided that his quest would be in vain. Finally, however, he learned from a former acquaintance, while in Methuen, that one of the family, Mr. Snell, was now living in Groveland, whither he turned his steps and was not long in finding his step-brother. The meeting was a joyous one.

Richard Geary of Arlington Heights, Methuen, had a very narrow escape from serious injury while riding home from his work in one of the city mills Saturday noon. Mr. Greary, who is aged about 17 years, was riding his bicycle up Lawrence street near the Spicket river bridge in Lawrence. In front of Father Mathew hall was a horse and wagon standing near the gutter. Just Geary was about to ride past the horse turned out very suddenly and the rider collided with the animal. He could not avoid it. Geary and his bicycle went down in a heap.

The horse was stopped before Geary was run over while willing hands of passers-by assisted unconscious Geary to a field near Father Mathew hall, where he slowly revived. The police ambulance was summoned, but Geary after a time was able to ride home unassisted. He seemed none

Mrs. John A. Stevens Monday reached her 93 birthday, and the occasion was quietly observed at Plymouth Rock, where she, together with the rest of the family are staying at the hotel which a A. B. Daws of Methuen is conducting. Mrs. Stevens made the trip some weeks ago, and in spite of her advanced age she stood the trip remarkably well. She is enjoying excellent health, and retains all her faculties. Mrs Stevens is the oldest woman in town and there is only one person older, J. P. Hill, who was 93 years old last April. Mrs. Stevens was born in Rindge, N. H., where her early life was spent and where she was married 65 years ago. Soon after her marriage she and her husband came to Methuen and she has since resided here. Her husband died 20 years ago. Mrs Stevens has four children, Mrs. A. B. Davis and Hattie Stevens of this town, Mrs. D. M. Kimball and J. Parker Stevens of Boston. All were present with her yesterday. Mrs. Stevens is one of the early members of the Congregational church, the oldest house of worship in town. She has always taken an active part in the church work and was a regular attendant until advanced age prevented,

A meeting of the general Old Home Week committee was held Monday at the Methuen club, when the parade committee was present and reported on the progress being made by the committee in regard to the parade. The general committe voted $75 for the use use of the parade committee. Chairman Tapley reported that the parade committee had decided upon the line of march, and that the parade would be made up of four divisions. The route was published in yesterdays' Telegram. After a few other matters were discussed, the meeting adjourned.

A meeting of the marshal's staff for the old home week parade will be held in Odd Fellows hall Wednesday night, have preceeded. There will be bowling

The eleventh annual picnic of the Methuen Grange to be held at Dow's grove Canoble Lake, Aug. 5 promises to be a grand success. The committee is working diligently to make the affair even enjoyable than those that and boating as usual, and there will be a long list of sports, including the following events: ball game between Haverhill and Methuen ranges, tug of war, fat men's race, 50 yards for men weighing 20 pounds or over; boys race 50 for boys 12 to 15 years of age, three legged race, sack race, ladies' race 25 yards, trophies for first and second; rope climb for boys. The sports begin at 3 p. m. and the ball game at 3.30. Trains will leave Lawrence at 8.37 a. m., and specials at 1.25 and 5.52 p. m., returning at 5.14 and 6.38 p. m., and special at 10 p. m.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucuos lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and, when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous services.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

SENT AWAY FOR THIRTY DAYS.

After a lengthy trial Saturday Gustaf Unger, who was arrested Friday night on charge of assault with a dangerous weapon upon his wife, Judge Rogers sentenced him to 30 days in the house of correction.

According to the wife's story as related to the authorities, her husband about 10 o'clock, on the night in question sent the children to bed, and then going to a closet, took out a loaded revolver, remarking savagely as he did so, "Now I shall make more room in this house." Believing that he intended to shoot her, the wife made a rush for the door, and escaped. She tramped alone from her home on Boylston street, through Park street, Lawrence, up Broadway to Methuen where she aroused Chief Jones. He, together with Officer McDermott and Patrolman Taylor went in a team to the house. They found Unger asleep, as it was then about 2 o'clock in the morning. They slipped the handcuffs on before the prisoner awoke, as they feared resistance, for on a previous occasion it had taken four powerful men to arrest him. Unger offered no resistance when he found himself in custody. He told the officers where the revolver was in the closet, and it was taken.

In court he pleaded not guilty to assault with a dangerous weapon, saying that there had been some trouble, but that he never intended to shoot his wife. After hearing both sides, Judge Rogers concluded that the unsubstantiated evidence of Mrs. Unger was not sufficient to warrant the case being taken before the grand jury, and took jurisdiction himself, imposing a 30 days sentence. After sentence was imposed the prisoner made some remark to his wife in German, which she later told Chief Jones was a threat to do her injury when he got out. Unger has been in the local court before. On one other occasion he tried to hang himself in the cell with a handkerchief, but was prevented by an officer.

PARADE COMMITTEE MET.

The parade committee of the Old Home Week celebration held an enthusiastic meeting Saturday evening, John S. Tapley, the chairman presiding. Reports were made from the different societies which would indicate that there will be upwards of 1000 men in line, exclusive of the music of which there will be a liberal amount. Those who have already taken favorable action toward turning out include the High School cadets, Colonal William B. Greene post, G. A. R., Hope lodge, I. O. O. F., Methuen C. T. A. S., Division 15, A. O. H., Methuen Canoe club, Methuen grange, Mystic council, H. C., the entire fire department marching as a platoon, and the cavalcade which will act as aids to the chief marshal, John S. Tapley. The line will be led by a platoon of mounted police, Minerva Rebekah lodge, I. O. O. F., and Samuel Adams chapter, D. A. R. will be represented by floats and the Grand Army post will have its cannon drawn by four horses in line. There will be a float representing the schools. Besides the above it is expected that there will also be a representation from the different trades in town. Considerable interest is being shown in the preparations for the parade and there seems to be no doubt that this feature of the celebration will be a marked success. The hour of the parade will be at 10 o'clock in the forenoon. The line will form at Central Square and will proceed over the following streets: Form in Central Square, proceed to Hampshire, to Lowell, to Railroad, to Arnold, to Lowell, to Hampshire, to Broadway, to Hugh, to Stevens, to Pleasant, to Charles, review in square, dismissed.

Mrs. George H. Wood is spending a week at Woodstock, N. H.

The committee on parade has secured 20 saddles, which are to be used in the parade. Those desiring saddles can secure them from the committee.

A couple of weeks or so ago a stranger was in town making inquiries for members of his family, whom he said he had not seen or heard from for forty years. At a local barber shop he found a man who was acquainted with those for whom he was searching, and learned from him that the members of the family had all died or removed from town during that time. The man's name was George W. Randall, and he was searching for his half brothers and sister, whose names were Snell. It has now been learned that Mr. Randall has found his half brother Thomas E. Snell, formerly of Methuen, now a prosperous farmer in Groveland. The Snell family were formerly well known residents of Methuen. In 1861 Mr. Randall enlisted in the army. He was then a resident of Derry, N. H. He enlisted in the Second N. H. regiment and went to the front. From the time of his entering the service his family received indirect information of his whereabouts and soon all traces of him were lost. It was thought that he had died and that his body was filling one of the thousands of unknown graves in the southern land.

The descendants of Benjamin Collins will hold the annual meeting of their association in the Rocky Hill meeting house, Amesbury, close to the original settlement, on the 29th of July Many prominent members from near and far are expected.

The Gloucester Veteran Firemen's association gave the hand tub Fisherman a try-out on Summer street last evening. There were not enough men to handle the brakes, only about 20 being present, when 40 are required, but under those conditions the machine played 161 feet.

The double funeral of Oliver Mosher and his wife, Georgianna E. Mosher, the victim of the tragedy in Lynn Thursday evening, will be held at the residence of Mrs. Rebecca Mosher tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Husband and wife will be buried side by side in the Mosher family vault in Saugus.

The New Hampshire and Vermont clubs of Wakefield will mawe their annual excursion this year to Plum Island. The party will go to Haverhill by train, thence by steamer Merrimac to Newburyport, when they will go by trolley to Oliver House, Plum Island Point, where a fish dinner will be served.

Rev. Frank L. Wilkins, D. D., pastor of the First Baptist church, Gloucester, will spend his vacation in a novel way. On Tuesday morning next he will depart from that city in an electric, and it is his intention if it be possible, to travel the entire distance to Rochester, N. Y., by trolley by the way of New York city.

The Clark case is going down with the Charlie Ross mystery into history. The Beverly police refuse to believe that the little Clark boy was lost in the woods at Chebacco pond, June 17, of last year, and also they refuse to believe that any wandering gypsies or vagabonds took the child. The police are also reticent as to the theory that interested parties know where the child is.

Old ship pictures, such as are common in old seaport cities like Newburyport, are becoming more and more valuable every year. Two pictures sold in Marblehead lately are said to have brought $50 apiece. These pictures portray old sailing ships, and are said to accurately picture the specimens of the old merchant marine, sailors themselves being the artist in many cases.

The Lynn Democratic club was formally launched on the sea of club life at a meeting in Oxford Club hall, Friday evening, with the good wishes of 60 staunch Democrats, many of whom signed for th voyage. Prior to the formation of the club, there was an address by Col. William A. Gaston, of Boston, the standard bearer of the Democratic party in the last election, who made a rousing speech, full of enthusiasm and high hopes, in which he touched upon the tariff as it related to the duties on hides.

The assessors valuation of the town of Middleton this year is $622,480., with the tax rate at $13.50 on a thousand. This is the lowest tax rate the own has had for over 10 years.

Dennis Lehan of Watertown has sold his estate in Boxford, consisting of house, stable and about one acre of land, to Belle Bryant Poore of Lynn, who buys for a home and will occupy the property.

The three-masted schooner Augustus Hunt arrived in Salem Tuesday with one of the crew, a burly colored man, in irons. While on the high sea between Philadelphia and Salem the man became ugly and threatened injury to others of the crew.

Beverly's millionaire councilman, Dr. John Miller Masury, has purchased another automobile. Mr. Masury has been interested in automobiling for years, and when the sport was in its infancy, he owned a steam carriage, which he disposed of two years ago.

L. G. Estey of Middleton has sold the well-known J. Augustus Huthinson estate corner of East and Maple streets, Middleton, consisting of house barn and five acres of land, to James A. Sargent, who comes from southern New Hampshire and buys for a home and is already in possession.

A couple of drunks boarded the Lawrence cars in Town House square, Salem Tuesday evening. One was put off at Church street and another whose "jag" did not develop until he got to North street, was thrown off near the Catholic cemetery. He put up a fight and the conductor landed with him in the middle of the street.

Six mortar carriers employed on the new Barnard factory at Lynn struck Tuesday for more wages, and the contractor immediately laid off the bricklayers and carpenters. The mortar carriers now get $2.25 a day, but demand half an hour over-time pay because they begin 15 minutes before the masons in the morning and again at noon. If the mortar carriers make the same demand on other buildings other contractors will lay off all hands, and there will be another tie-up in building.

A pronounced boom in building is evident in the Peabody building trade. The N. H. Foor Leather company and the Armstrong company is having new buildings put up. It is understood that the Morrill Leather company propose to erect new buildings and a power plant in Peabody. A number of other improvements are being made. The Vaughn Machine company has been doing much building lately. It certainly looks as if a boom had struck the town.

In anticipation of the Old Home week celebration, many Haverhill merchants and business men have already begun to decorate their stores. Hotels Thorndike and Eagle are the most elaborately decorated, and the Coombs & Gilbert block, Masonic building, and White's corner also have elaborate displays. Judging from the early commencement of this work, the city will be gorgeous in colors by Saturday and the business sections of the city are expected to be a mass of red, white and blue.

The hand tub "Uncle Sam," which the Manchester, N. H. Veteran Firemen's association will bring to Salem to participate in the annual muster of the New England Veteran Firemen's league, is a piano box tub, and is a sister to the Baw Bees of Gardner, the Converse of Malden, and the Red Jackets of Cambridge, all crack engines. Her record is 224 feet and 10 inches, and the secretary of the association writes to The News to say that she will be in fine fettle on Aug. 20, fit to break her own and somebody's else record.

The Sioux Indians base ball team will play Friday evening with the Haverhill league team at Athletic park. The Sioux Indians ball club have been touring the country playing games with the strongest teams that could be procured. A feature of their playing is that they schedule games for evening, and the game Friday will commence at 8 o'clock. The league team has a game scheduled for the afternoon. There will be no game here. Athletic park will be as light as day. Fifty 1000-horse power electric lights will be placed at various points, so that the field will look but little different than during the day.

Thomas H. Fair, expert on lasting department prices and shoemaking in general, who is engaged in Haverhill by the joint shoe council in adjusting prices for certain parts of the manufacturing process, spent Sunday at his home in Haverhill. Mr. Fair talked interestingly of his first week in Haverhill. The most interesting news he brings is that, from his views of the general situation in Haverhill and reflected from Lynn, an early adjustment of the differences between the so-called Shoe Workers' union and the Boot and Shoe Workers' union seems in sight, and that a conference looking toward that end was set for Sunday at Marblehead.

THIS COSTS YOU NOTHING.

E. M & W A. Allen Will Return Your Money If Mi-o-na Does Not Cure Dyspepsia and Increase Flesh.

There are hundreds of people in Andover who were not the least bit surprised when they read in the Townsman that E. M. & W. A. Allen were selling Mi-o-na under a guarantee to refund the money, in case it did not cure indigestion and increase weight.

This remarkable preparation is a true flesh forming food, that builds up good healthy, solid tissues and makes thinness and scrawniness a thing of the past.

It tones up the digestive organs, and will cure the worst case of indigestion, headache, dizziness, or the depressed, weak condition that afflicts nearly every one who suffers with stomach trouble. Mi-o-na does not simply relieve; it does lasting good.

In 98 out every 100 cases where Mi-o-na is used, the result is a restoration of perfect harmony between height and weight and an absolute and permanent cure of all stomach troubles.

There are today hundreds in Andover, who are recommending Mi-o-na because it cured them. A few months ago they were thin and dyspeptic and could eat nothing without fear of stomach trouble. Since using Mi-o-na they have made noticeable gain in flesh, can eat what they want, and when they want without fear of suffering.

Remember that you risk nothing in buying Mi-o-na. If it gives you the desired effect the cost is trifling; if it fails, E. M. & W. A. Allen will pay for the remedy themselves.

JOLLY SUMMER PARTY.

To say that the summer party conducted last evening in the Merrimack hall under the auspices of the Young Men's Catholic association was a great success is putting it lightly. It was a success in every partiular, socially and financially. Those present as the guests of the association find the greatest of hospitality extended. The elegant rooms of the organization on floor above the hall were thrown open during the entire evening and guests were ushered about taking much interest in the welfare of the association which has flourished steadily ever since its inception some time ago. The dancing continued until 12 o'clock and shortly before that hour a special electric car left for the Centre, and later one left for Lawrence conveying a large number of out of town friends to their homes.

A fine order of dances was carried out under the direction of a competent corps of floor officials. The music for the occasion furnished by the Columbian orchestra of Lawrence was superb and added noticeably to the enjoyment of the affair. Previous to the inauguration of dancing the orchestra contributed a fine concert program which included the following popular selections:

Overture, Morning, Noon and Night. Suppe
Intermezzo, Anona. Vivan Grey
Selection "Peggy from Paris" Loraine
Concert waltz, Eternelle Ivresse. Ganne
Finale, Dixie Land Haines

The general committee selected to have charge of the arrangements for the affair was: John Willis, chairman, Charles Gillispie, Joseph Bolton, John Walsh, and Arthur T. Keefe. J. Bolton secured the car and Charles Gillispie the music. John Walsh had charge of checking, and was treasurer of the affair. John Costello was in the ticket office. Officer Charles McCarthy and John Campbell did efficient service at the entrance. At intermission ice cream was served in the banquet hall by the following members of the association: Harry F. Cunningham, Joseph Bolton, John Costello and John Walsh.

The following were the officials in charge of the floor: Floor director, Louis H. McAloon; assistant floor director, P. J. Casey; aids, Harry F. Cunningham, Alexander J. Gillespie, Joseph W. Bolton, Fred Phelan, Arthur B. Keefe, Charles A. Gillespie.

Among those present: Sydney Smith, Joseph Walsh, Joseph Vargus, Emmanuel Vargus, Richard Lamb, John Lamb, John Bolton, George Herbst, Clarence I. Smith, Joseph A. Rand, Bert Kelley, David Mackie, Charles Gillispie, Aleck Gillispie, John Lyons, Edward Clarke, P. J. Healey, Tax Collector C. J. Mahoney, Charles E. Johnson, Joseph Lawlor, Charles E. CO. A SCORES A HIT.

Under the direction of company A, of the Credit System with Officer James M. Craig as captain the members of the Bradstreet colony of Pilgrim Fathers were given a fine musical treat on Monday evening, Mr. Craig and company A certainly scored a great hit. An exceptionally fine program was presented by local talent and by Lawrence artists. The entertainment was given after the business of the evening had been disposed of and a number of guests were present. Those who took part were well received and generously applauded. The program as given was:

Reading, Miss Helen Costello; baritone solo, Edward Costello; recitation, Ester Brown; solo, Mrs. Elizabeth Greenwood; mandolin solo, Charles Dore; solo, Robert McAllister; reading, Virginia Bryant; vocal solo with violin obligato by Masters Ralph and Harrison Carey, baritone solo, Ernest E. Heald, Lawrence; song by David Shearer; vocal solo, Miss Catherine Donnelley, accompanied by J. Harry Lynch; reading by Miss Ester Greenwood baritone solo by Mr. Heald; solo by Miss Donnelley. Company B will entertain at the next meeting.

GRANGE LAWN PARTY.

The grange held their lawn party on Tuesday evening in spite of the inclement weather and a large number attended and a pleasant evening was passed at Rolling Ridge farm the home of the Master and Mrs. Winfield S. Hughes where this annual affair was conducted. The party was conducted on the lines of a barn party as the grounds were not in a condition fit for use. Japanese and Chinese lanterns were strung about giving a gala effect. Dancing was enjoyed by those present and music was furnished by a quartet of popular musicians. The general arrangements for the party were left in the hands of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Hughes and the lecturer Miss Lucy Prescott. Those who had charge of the several departments were: Punch, Miss Marion Harper and Miss Clara DeBussey; peanut and mustery table, Miss Grace E. Barker; candy table, Miss Angie Whittier; ice cream cut by George L. Barker and Henry Nason and served by the Misses Carrie, Helen and Elsie Bassett and Miss Florence Poor. The affair was in every way a social and financial success.

OFFICIAL DOG CATCHER.

Constable William J. Toohey has been appointed as Official Dog Catcher for the town of North Andover. He receives his appointment from the County Commissioners. Mr. Toohey intends to give owners of dogs sufficient time to conform with the law, hence the war with powder and ball all unlicensed canines must go to their happy hunting grounds. He expresses his intention of enforcing the law that all dogs must wear collars with the owner's name and license number upon them. The officer is now looking up the dog residents of the town.

It is everywhere admitted to be the most successful remedy in use for bowel complaints and the only one that never fails. It is pleasant, safe, and reliable.

WARNING TO DOG OWNERS.

Chief Jones Monday caused notices to be distributed about town yesterday warning dog owners that their dogs must be licensed or that the animals were liable to be killed. The notices called attention to chap. 102, sec. 80 of the public statutes, which follows:

"Every owner or keeper of a dog of three months' old or over shall annually on or before the thirtieth day of April cause it to be registered, numbered, described and licensed for one year, from the first day of the ensuing May, in the office of the clerk of the city or town wherein said dog is kept, and shall cause it to wear around its neck a collar distinctly marked with its owner's name and its registered number."

"Sec. 90. And any person may and every Police Officer and Constable shall kill or cause to be killed any unlicensed dogs wh never or wherever found."

The notices gave warning that unless the licenses were obtained at once, the law would be enforced. It is said that only a small per cent. of the dogs in the town have been licensed thus far this year.

A Chinaman's Smoke.

In Persia and in Japan pipes about the size of a baby's thimble are used, providing two draws, a great waste of time. It is the Chinaman, however, who in smoking gets endless work out of practically nothing at all.

He carries a little box about twice the size of an ordinary silver cigarette case. This is half filled with water. In one end is a removable tiny tube to serve as pipe. At the other end is the pipestem. First of all, he removes the tube and blows through it to remove all blockage. Then he fumbles through his awkward clothes, searching for tobacco and produces a bit of rag in which it is wrapped.

Carefully he extracts a wad of tobacco, puts away his rag and slowly plugs the tube, which holds perhaps the tenth part of an ordinary cigarette. But he never has any matches.

So he has to borrow or hunt out a brown paper stem and light it—it glows for a long time and can be puffed into flame again—he gives a long draw; slowly, appreciatively; the smoke oozes from between his Celestial lips; he spits; he draws again and gets small result. The smoke is over. He removes the tube, blows through it, and the proceeding begins all over again.

The Heart.

The human heart is practically a force pump about six inches in length and four inches in diameter. It beats 70 times per minute, 4,200 times per hour, 100,800 times per day and 36,792,000 times per year and 2,575,440,000 times in seventy years, which is "man's appointed threescore years and ten." At each of these beats it forces 2½ ounces of blood through the system, 175 ounces per minute, 600 pounds per hour or 7.01 tons per day. All the blood in the body, which is about thirty pounds, passes through the heart every three minutes. This little organ pumps every day what is equal to lifting 122 tons one foot high or one ton 122 feet high—that is, one ton to the top of a forty yard mill chimney or sixteen persons seven score each to the same height. During the seventy years of a man's life this marvelous little pump, without a single moment's rest, night or day, discharges the enormous quantity of 178,850 tons of blood.

"Lost Pins.

What becomes of pins?

It would really seem reflecting upon the daily disappearance of pins that the earth would be covered with them and that the annual fall if measured would amount to several inches. Women who start out with pins playing a useful part in the details of a gown will tell you that they never can find a pin; that they are always buying pins; that they are eternally loosing them. In the dressmaker's rooms the expenditure for pins is no small item. The average dressmaker uses and loses twelve papers of pins a month. Yet the floors of her rooms are not matted with them, and frequently her wail goes up, "What has become of all the pins?" Where indeed do they go? Is there a crust of pins subtly forming under the everyday sweep that will puzzle explorers in some far age to come?—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Victoria Medal.

The Victoria medal is made out of bronze from Russian guns captured in the Crimean war. The design is the work of the prince consort of Queen Victoria. The medals are made separately and only when one is needed. Thus when some soldier or sailor, no matter what his rank may be, has shown "conspicuous bravery or devotion to the country in the presence of danger," as the act reads, the war office sends to the royal jewelers the bronze needed for the metal. It is carefully cast, filed smooth around the edges and then the design is brought out by chasing. The soldier's medal is suspended by a red ribbon and that of the sailor by a blue piece of silk.

Matrimonial Dyspepsia.

"Well, how do you like married life?" inquired the friend.

"Not at all," replied the man who had married money and was suffering for it. "I'm a case of matrimonial dyspepsia."

"Matrimonial dyspepsia?"

"Yes. She never agrees with me—she's too rich."—Philadelphia Ledger.
